Binky is Moving Out

Svea and Binky are best friends. Wherever Svea goes, Binky is right there with her. Though one day Binky is going away revealing a secret: pacifiers start a grand adventure once they leave their children. For example, they have to help the prince and block the dragon's nostrils, otherwise the castle will go up in flames, as well as repair the huge sinking ship. It is of course not easy for Svea, but Binky shows that she's never truly alone – she has always been surrounded by loving people who care for her.

A heartwarming tale that helps families bid farewell to the pacifier.

- Illustrated board book about letting go
- An emotional topic that all families are familiar with

Madlen Ottenschläger still remembers how hard it was for one of her children to say good-bye to a pacifier and how much stories can comfort. Fortunately, she has now written down the stories she created back then. The children's book author lives with her family near Ulm.

Anne-Kathrin Behl, born in 1983 and raised in Greifswald, studied illustration at HAW in Hamburg. She now lives with her husband and two sons in Celle, where she creates numerous illustrated books in her studio.

Whoever Yawns First, Loses!

Jona has a new book that Dad should read before bed tonight. It's called "Whoever yawns first, loses." So, reading together quickly turns into a contest to see who will be the first one. And the book they read is something else: One animal after another starts yawning, and suddenly the whole zoo is infected by the sleepy disease. Dad doesn't stand a chance. Jona holds out longer, but in the end, he too has to admit defeat and drifts off to sleep, happy and content.

A humorous story that will make you ... Yawn!

Heidi

Little Heidi is moving to her grumpy grandfather's home in the Swiss Alps. She quickly wins the old man's heart and makes friends with the shepherd boy Peter and his mischievous goats. Life in the mountains seems perfect! But then Heidi has to go to dreary Frankfurt to cheer up the sickly Klara. Her world falls apart. Will Heidi ever be able to return to her beloved new home?

The children's book classic magnificently brought to life with orchestral music.

Henrik Albrecht studied piano, composition, and music theory. Above all he composes radio plays and music for film and theatre. Since 2005, he has focused on orchestral radio plays (presenting world literature with orchestra and speakers). For this work, he has received multiple awards, including the German Audiobook Award.

Malin Hörl, born in 1994, studied Design with a focus on Illustration at the University of Applied Sciences in Münster. She now lives and works as a freelance author and illustrator near Frankfurt am Main. She particularly enjoys working with watercolour and coloured pencils.

“When you have a friend, you have nothing to fear!”

Every child knows that the little bear and the little tiger are best friends. And in their house by the river, it is very cosy. One day, the little bear finds a box that has a strong smell of bananas. The box says that it comes from “Panama.” So, the little bear and his friend, the little tiger, set off in search of the land of their dreams.

The world-famous journey in a form of musical story, full of wanderlust and adventure!

There is a lot going on at the Iron Castle: wallpapering, shoeing horses, and skateboarding. Three princesses are behind it all, doing an internship by Knight Rusty, Bö, and Koks in order to learn about castle life.

However, they end up learning all the wrong things! At least, that’s what the headmistress of the princess academy thinks. After all, why should a princess know how to wallpaper when there’s staff for that? It’s only when the three young ladies take their fate into their own hands that everything turns around for the better.

This story will rust away the clichés about princesses!

Liva, Bear's Daughter – Wild Child of the Forest

The fairy Liva lives with her mother in one of the last safe places for forest creatures like them. People avoid this area because they fear the “Bear Mother.” However, things change when a boy named Anders seeks refuge there. As a half-fairy, Anders is hunted by the Baroness and her followers, who believe he could upset the balance between humans and fairies, according to a prophecy. Liva decides to help him. Can they unite the creatures of the forest and stand up to the Baroness?

“Gregor Wolf’s masterpiece lies in his ability to combine familiar elements of stories, characters, situations, events, and landscapes to create a dramaturgically cohesive and unique whole. The side effect: we find ourselves in a familiar setting, yet we still root for the heroes ...”

A Killer on the Guest List

Christmas at Zelda's place, the best friend of Lilly! It is planned to take place in a hotel, with cookie preparation, Christmas dinner, and gift-giving. The dream holidays are suddenly interrupted – unexpected guests arrive at the door. Among them are a teacher who lost her way, a journalist whose car broke down, and, topping it all off, Zelda's grandfather with his quarrelling family members. A snowstorm and power outage cut the house off from the outside world, so it is not possible to leave it...When a guest is found tied up in the library and another is found dead in bed shortly afterward, it's clear: there's a murderer among them! Fortunately, Lilly is a passionate reader of detective novels, what helps her to solve the case right away.

Who's to blame

It's the last day of school before the holidays, and German teacher Moritz Brandl steps in his advanced class. Instead of starting the lesson, a game of life and death begins: Brandl locks the door and pulls out a weapon. He wants to find out who has ruined his life. Only if the class sticks together, they will have a chance to survive.

“Rule number one: Anyone who lies, I shoot.

Rule number two: Anyone who attacks me, I shoot.

Rule number three: Anyone who tries to flee, I shoot.”

Game of Fear and Promise – The Wall of Memento City

The “Wall” is the largest death-sport spectacle in the world. The 16-year-old Lissa risks her life in this brutal competition in the heart of Memento City because the prize money could pay for her father’s medical treatment. As one of over 150 young participants, she attempts to climb the two-kilometer-high wall filled with deadly traps. Only the first to reach the top will achieve fame, honor, and money. But not everyone survives the deadly race – or the intrigues of their rivals.

Quendel. The Hill Country Saga

The Quendel are a cozy folk who gather around the fireplace in the evenings to tell stories and usually stick to their routines. When Bullrich Schattenbart doesn't come home one night, his worried neighbors set out to find him, driven by a terrible suspicion: Could it be that the hermit dared to approach the Finstar Forest? Little do they know, a strangely glowing mist is opening a gateway to another world. Only those who can read the signs understand that ancient, forgotten, and cruel forces are awakening once more.

“The literary discovery of the year.”

Denis Scheck

Caroline Ronnefeldt studied art history in Munich and illustration in Hamburg. She now lives and works as an illustrator in the Hanseatic city. With her “Quendel” trilogy, she has created a highly praised literary fantasy world. She finds inspiration for her books in her family's enchanted garden. Always by her side: her Siamese cat Selwyn.

Rory Shy is an unusual detective: he feels uncomfortable questioning witnesses, is too shy to talk to informants, and is far too polite to bother suspects with questions about their alibis. Instead, he has a secret method of his own that has helped him solve even the trickiest puzzles so far. Moreover, there is his assistant, a twelve-year-old named Mathilda, who is growing up to be a professional detective and is irreplaceable in solving cases. In the later volumes, they are joined by the Cocker Spaniel Dr. Herekenrath.
